Special circumstances in the form of the site’s irregular shape, significant angled frontage, and corner site characteristics which merits the granting of consent by the authority for variations to Clause 7.3 (Buildings Setbacks of Residential Buildings).
4. Variations to Cause 7.3 (Building Setbacks of Residential Buildings) for reduced front and side setbacks are considered justified based on special circumstances, and that:

- the relatively minor encroachments of the building within front setbacks is on that part of the site which most reflects ‘corner site’ characteristics and therefore considered consistent with the purpose of the clause which includes that residential building are located be ‘compatible with the streetscape’ and ‘minimise adverse effects of building massing’; and
- the reduced side setback for dwelling 4’s garage reflects the relatively narrow width of the rear of the site abutting a blank wall of the residential building to the west, and would have minimal impact of outlook from the abutting property, and minimal impact on the streetscape due to its location well within the site.
